Curriculum Plan for Counseling Psychology and Clinical Psychology English Program:

The Department of Psychology offers graduate work incorporating the scientific methodologies and theories in psychology and the in-depth knowledge and skills that students need to advance professional career in a wide variety of settings. Our distinguished faculty specializes in a broad range of topics in psychology such as counseling and psychotherapy, community mental health, social psychology, clinical and psychopathology, organizational, cultural, positive psychology, et al. Our program is for those who wish to undertake rigorous study. The program welcomes both students who hold an undergraduate degree in psychology and those with a limited background in psychology. Many of our graduates applied their knowledge and skills to work in government and industry, as administrators, trainers, managers, mental health workers, and researchers. Others used the MS degree to continuously pursue doctoral studies in psychology or related areas.
